Duff Hopes Rate To Stay At $26

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff, even in the early stages of preparing the 1961 town budget, feels the tax rate might be kept at $26. "I'm in hopes of keeping the rate of $26", he asserted this week.

Preliminary budget figures are not yet available, as Duff continues the task of discussing these items with department heads and other concerned officials. He plans to have tentative estimates for the Selectmen early in December.

If the normal process is followed, the Selectmen go over each department budget.

Then the final figures are prepared, and go to the Finance Committee early in January for that group's final recommendations.

Also to be considered during the few weeks until the first of the Somewhere this week, probably feeling safe and secure after 35 years, there lives the man who calmly murdered Patrolman Robert T. Black the night of Nov. 27, 1925, in the middle of Elm sq.

Police from many communities sought the killer — but he never was found.

And even today, residents who remember the sensation caused by the killing claim the authorities knew who the man was, but never could prove a case against him.

Churches Plan Joint Thanksgiving Service

The annual Union Thanksgiving Service of Andover's six Protestant churches will be held tonight, Thanksgiving eve, at 8 o'clock in the Free Christian Church on Elm st.

The clergy of all of the churches and of Cochran Chapel at Phillips Academy will participate in the processional and be seated in the chancel. All of the congregations and the public at large are cor-

Festive Lighting For Christmas

Christmas lights will shine on Main st. this week, including those decorating the 35-foot tree now in place in the front of the town hall.

Board of Trade President Kenneth P. Thompson said all the lights are scheduled to go on tomorrow night.

The giant tree, a gift to the Board from Walter F. Urbach, 33 Summer st., was put in place Monday morning, and will be decorated by a local firm.

Work has been progressing for some time on the decorations set atop the meters, and various private interests are also putting up their Christmas-time trimmings.

The big tree installed Monday was suggested to the town by the

The Andover Housing Authority announced today that a house-to-house survey of the redevelopment project area will begin Monday, Nov. 28.

Members of the staff of the Authority's consultants, Candeb, Fleissig & Associates, will check and inspect each property in the project area. Residents will be asked to give a limited amount of information to the interviewers so that a realistic picture of all existing conditions in the area may be obtained. The information gathered will be entirely technical and will be held in confidence.

The Authority emphasizes that this work is not a property appraisal for determining values of properties. No one has been auth-

Championship To Be Settled Tomorrow

It'll be Andover vs. No. Andover tomorrow morning at 10 at the North Andover field — and hundreds of Andover fans will be rooting for the Blue Devils to take the Little Three championship.

Although No. Andover has a better season record, the Blue Devils whopped their only common opponent, Methuen, while No. Andover squeaked by the Rangers from Methuen. On the basis of this comparison, Andover might appear to be slightly favored. But this annual tilt is one where the record book can be thrown away, specially when the championship is involved.

Ticket Contest For Youngsters

Children's Theater Workshop members began selling tickets for "Mr. Popper's Penguins" Nov. 17 and will be selling them through Dec. 5.

Thirteen areas in Andover and North Andover will compete in the selling contest, the winning area to be announced at all three performances of the play, Dec. 9, 10 and 17. The winning area will be determined by dividing the number of tickets sold in the area by the number of selling members in that area.

In each area a mother will act as senior chairman, holding the money collected, keeping records and supplying more tickets when needed. Each area will also have a junior chairman whose duties will be to urge on the members and do the "leg work" for the senior chairman.

Held Party For Retiring Clerk

Singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow", employees in the town hall bid good-by to former Town Clerk George Winslow last Friday afternoon.

Mr. Winslow, who has worked long past his retirement date at the request of the Selectmen, and to help the new clerk, Irving O. Piper, received a watch from his fellow employees. It was presented in their behalf by Town Manager Thomas E. Duff.

After the brief formalities, a two-tiered cake and coffee were enjoyed.

STOLEN CAR CRASHES - This 1959 Pontiac convertible crashed into a wall at Phillips Academy Monday night, sending its driver and a companion to the hospital. Police said the car was reported stolen in Lawrence. It is owned by Mario Vittorioso, 125 Allston st., Lawrence. Police identified the driver, who was admitted to the hospital, as a 16-year-old boy from Methuen. His companion was not involved in the theft, police stated. The car was heading south near the Academy and went onto the left side of the roadway. The vehicle was a total wreck, police said. The inset shows impact points where the boys struck the windshield. Low Number Plates

Several residents have complained this week that their low automobile registrations have been taken away by the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

One man, obviously angered by losing his 5-digit number, said the Registry told him there was an error in his application, and thus it was turned down. He explained that he has had the number for some time, applying for it yearly before the time specified by the Registry.

OFFICER'S MURDER STILL UNSOLVED

It may be sheer guesswork, but often happens that rumors eventually become a case drags on unsolved several Andover residents shooting, which clued officer Black's hunt through the area for a man driving a car that had been stolen in Lawrence. Police theorized then that the car was used in a get-away robbery at an A & P store. Lawrence that same evening. Chronologically, from the time the Andover Townsman was published, this incident opened:

A few minutes after 9, the Nov. 27, Mrs. T. J. White, Lawrence police to report the car had been stolen from its place in front of the M.J.M. funeral home in Lawrence. Just a half-hour later, the car was at 250 So. Broadway, Lawrence, was held up by a man, nervously holding a revolver. Made employees tell him the receipts were hidden, forced them into a back room, told police the youth to get money, then ran to a car across the street.

Lawrence police quickly into action and chased the car towards Andover. Then they found that the car, apparently driven by a second man, had swung back to Lawrence railroad depot. One of the men jumped out of the car and headed for the station that night and word of the holdup and police at 10 p.m., he went home to as was customary then.

Officer Black, alone square, also received notification via the police telephone of Stacey's drugstore. At 10 a.m. he turned away from the station. Black saw a car come square with its left front wheel missing. He whistled at the car, who paid no attention. As the car went by, he saw it was the one just reported over the telephone as having been stolen in Lawrence. He on foot, as the car went south on Main st.

The driver finally stopped at Chestnut st., when the car picked up much speed due to faulty brake. He ran down towards Central, with pursuit.

Harry Schofield, standing corner, remarked to Joseph A. Rand, "That man stole a car."

Then Black returned square. He'd lost the car in the darkness. Shortly afterwards, he standing in front of the Columbus home, and, when he held the man for questioning, it proved to be Harry York and neighbor, who had just returned to the club.

Bernard McDonald, alone, he might need help with Frank McBride, James Darby, York, John and Patrick McBride on street and saw Black standing side the abandoned car to

STILL UNSOLVED

It may be sheer guesswork - for often happens that rumors of this kind eventually become accepted as a case drags on unsolved. Several Andover residents saw a shooting, which climaxed Officer Black's hunt through the square for a man driving a car that had been stolen in Lawrence. Police theorized then that the car was used in a get-away after a robbery at an A & P store in Lawrence that same evening. Chronologically, from the files of the Andover Townsman of that sensational period, this is what happened:

A few minutes after 9, the night of Nov. 27, Mrs. T. J. White called Lawrence police to report her car had been stolen from its parking place in front of the M. J. Mahoney funeral home in Lawrence.

Just a half-hour later, the A & P store at 250 So. Broadway, Lawrence, was held up by a youth, nervously holding a revolver. He made employees tell him where the receipts were hidden, then forced them into a back room. They told police the youth took the money, then ran to a car waiting across the street.

Lawrence police quickly swung into action and chased the car towards Andover. Then they learned that the car, apparently driven by a second man, had swung back to the Lawrence railroad depot, where one of the men jumped out. The car once again headed for Andover.

Officer Saunders was on duty in the station that night and received word of the holdup and police chase. At 10 p.m., he went home to supper, as was customary then.

Officer Black, alone in the square, also received notice of the holdup via the police telephone at Stacey's drugstore. At 10:15, just as he turned away from the phone, Black saw a car come into the square with its left front brake smoking. He whistled at the driver, who paid no attention.

As the car went by, Black saw it was the one just reported to him over the telephone as having been stolen in Lawrence. He followed on foot, as the car went south along Main st.

The driver finally stopped at Chestnut st., when the car wouldn't pick up much speed due to the faulty brake. He ran down Chestnut towards Central, with Black in pursuit.

Harry Schofield, standing on the corner, remarked to his friend Joseph A. Rand, "That must be the stolen car."

Then Black returned to the square. He'd lost the car driver in the darkness. Shortly afterwards, he saw a man standing in front of the Knights of Columbus home, and, with drawn gun, held the man for questioning. It proved to be Harry York, a friend and neighbor, who had just left the clubroom. He returned to spread the word in the club.

Bernard McDonald exclaimed "If Black's hunting that robber alone, he might need help". He with Frank McBride, Dr. Daly, James Darby, York, John Nelligan and Patrick McBride ran to the street and saw Black standing beside the abandoned car talking with Schofield and Rand. They all remained at the car, while Black called Lawrence police.

About 20 minutes later, a stranger appeared on Main st. and walked along toward the square, and then turned back toward the town house, apparently on the other side of the street.

As Black overtook the man, he turned casually and walked up to the officer as if to answer his questions. But when he was about three feet from him, he shot the officer twice. Black managed to fire his revolver four times, but without any apparent effect.

The man ran slowly towards Campion's at the corner.

A crowd started out of the Andover Lunch, but held back when they saw the armed man.

About the same time, James L. Toohey was returning from North Andover with his wife and a woman passenger. They saw the excitement in the square and, just as they passed the silent policeman at the corner of Essex st., a man jumped on the car's running board.

Toohey saw the gun; told the women to duck; and swerved the car sharply while stepping on the gas. The bandit fell off.

Meanwhile, men had gone to Black's assistance. He handed his revolver to Bernard McDonald, who in turn gave it to Frank McBride, an off-duty policeman. McDonald notified Lawrence police who responded quickly.

A passing car had been hailed, and Black was taken to the Lawrence Hospital. He died there within a few minutes after arrival.

Local, Lawrence and state police took over the search and thoroughly checked the town.

But all they found were an overcoat and some cartridges, abandoned behind Dennis Sweeney's barn at 22 Central st.

Dogs were enlisted to follow the trail, but failed.

After a while, the excitement died down. Police theorized later that a Salem man might have been involved, based on some fingerprints taken from Toohey's automobile.

But nothing happened. No arrests followed. No solution has ever been recorded.

Possibly the killer, alive somewhere now, recalls the details of that night even more thoroughly than they are recorded here.

Perhaps he may even read about his own deeds in these columns.

And whatever he may think about it, it's a pretty sure bet now that he'll never have to answer to anything or anyone except his own conscience.

James W. Franklin, director of Urban Renewal, pointed out that "this work is another part of our project planning. No decision has been made as to which properties will be marked for acquisition or which persons will be required to move."

"No family will have to move until the whole project plan is approved at town meeting", Mr. Franklin added, "and no one will have to move after that approval is obtained until the Authority can offer them an adequate new dwelling or apartment." This point will not be reached for many months.

Thomas P. Eldred, chairman of the Authority, has asked all citizens to cooperate with the surveyors in order to assure the Authority of accurate information. As soon as a plan for the area has been prepared and reviewed, all interested persons will be invited to comment on it.

Also to be studied if town meeting approves, is the whole problem of waste disposal as it involves public dumping areas.

School Committee Debated Salaries

The School Committee, meeting Tuesday night, heard a report from the principals that pay scales be established for them on a basis.

The principals have requested this type of payment previously. Setting the maximum teacher salary plus merit as "1.1" principals believe administrative positions should be set on a basis of 1.1, 1.2, etc.

Thus, for example, if maximum salaries plus merit were $3,000 then a 1.5 ratio would equal administrator $5,000 plus $1,500.

At the present time, principals are paid extra on the basis of rooms in their buildings; district heads are paid a flat amount above their teacher's salary; and other administrators' teaching duties are paid at established by the School Committee.

Other business at Tuesday night meeting was scheduled to include decisions on salary schedule for the coming year.

The Committee has been studying various plans for salary increases and has agreed to study proposals prior to making a decision.

It seemed apparent that salaries will be increased, and principals will receive extra pay for master's degrees. The amounts had not been determined until last night. The Townsman's press schedule for the holiday, makes it impossible to report the meeting in this week.

School Committee Debated Salaries

The School Committee, meeting Tuesday night, heard a request from the principals that pay scales be established for them on a ratio basis.

The principals have requested this type of payment previously. Setting the maximum teacher's salary plus merit as "1", the principals believe administrative positions should be set on a ratio basis of 1.1, 1.2, etc.

Jaycees Won Prize For Parade Float

The newly formed Andover Junior Chamber of Commerce was the recipient of the annual Lawrence Santa Claus Parade Service Club "Trophy-Plaque" last Sunday afternoon.

The award is made to the best service organization float submitted in the parade. The winning float carried the Andover Male Choir, which sang Christmas Carols under the direction of J. Everett Collins.

Jaycee President Richard Barney stated that the plaque was won through the energetic efforts of Chairman Rushforth and that the whole membership owes him a vote of thanks for making their first project a winner and thus setting the pace for future civic services. The following members served on this committee: D. Ellsworth, C. Freije, R. Barney, L. Hill, J. Manning, P. Gilday and A. Strassel.

The project was under the chairmanship of second vice president Calvin Rushforth, who is also a member of the Male Choir.

Other Andover units won prizes at the parade.

The All-Girl Band tied for first place with the Tenney Memorial High School Band. And in the floats, St. Augustine's School was a winner.

Dear friends,

It is not at all uncommon for individuals to make complete arrangements for their own funerals. We believe this indicates a gradual change in the public's attitude.

In the minds of many, there is nothing dreadful about a departure which is on the schedule of every life. And we believe that modern methods now practiced in our profession have done much toward creating this change of attitude.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Heed The Warning

The police department's warning to all parents to instruct their children about the dangers of accepting rides or becoming friendly with strangers is a sound one. It's a warning that can not be repeated too often.

As it happens, there have been more cases of child molestation here in recent months than is usually the case. But even if there had been not a single case, it is wise to remind parents of their responsibility to instruct their children about such matters.

If both parents and children follow the sensible suggestions outlined in the police department warning, there may be fewer cases of molestation in the future.

Briefly, the advice is this:

Don't accept rides with strangers, or go anywhere with a stranger. Get away quickly.

The incident should be reported to any adult the child knows.

Get descriptions of the individual, the car, and get the registration number if possible.

Adults are urged to report anyone seen acting suspiciously around children, and to get, if possible a description and the registration number of the car.

Following these rules may result in saving lives.

Action Needed Now

Immediate action will be needed if some form of emergency communications system is to be installed on Route 93, for the protection of those who use that highway.

We understand that Chief Henry L. Hilton has suggested that this item be included in a fire department capital expenditures budget.

But there also is a possibility that this may be, in part at least, a state problem as well. For this is a federal-state highway, and thus it may be that either the state or federal agencies may become involved.

Whatever has to be done, it seems important that it get underway immediately.

The need is apparent — just the example of one car being consumed by flames because it took so long to summon assistance should be sufficient to warrant action.

In the end, it may be that the town will want to install citizen's telephone alarms on the bridge structures — these are hooked up directly to the police station and are less likely to be tampered with than is a regular telephone. A lot of people would feel easier using these new thru-ways if they know that it is possible to summon help, for themselves or someone else, quickly and accurately.

Good Luck, Mr. Winslow

We'd like to add our expressions of good luck to George Winslow, who completed his final day in the town clerk's office last Friday.

Mr. Winslow spent many years in that office — and more recently has worked well past his normal retirement at the request of the Selectmen. He was able to help them over many a rough spot during the early days of the town manager form of government, and has been of invaluable assistance to his successor.

We hope, as do all his many friends and acquaintances, that Mr. Winslow will have many happy years in retirement, and that he will enjoy them fully.

Charles Hill will shortly move to Florence st.

George Hussey of Chestnut st. has purchased a fine driving horse.

John Stack and family of Elm st. have moved to the corner of Summer and Whittier sts., into the home recently vacated by Parmenus Partridge.

Punchard defeated Exeter High in the annual game played at Phillips Academy field by a score of 11-3. Collins did all the scoring for Punchard, catching a long pass from Boland to make the final touchdown.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McTernan and family of Reading will spend Thanksgiving day at the home of Allen F. Abbott, on High st.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lamont Jr. of Providence, R. I., visited in town yesterday.

25 Years Ago — November, 1935

A three-inch fall of snow, helped by strong winds, covered the town

Sunday, as temperatures fell swiftly. Unique in the season's first storm was a single clap of thunder and one bolt of lightning, which appeared to strike in town somewhere. The snow cover disappeared rapidly yesterday during the warm weather.

The County Commissioners have indicated that the town may get its own representative after next year, through a re-districting that is currently being planned.

A barn and several pigs on River rd. were destroyed by fire last Friday, with damage set at $1,500. Arthur Labreck and Fred Rogers saved a horse and 21 pigs, but some of the latter ran back into the flames and were destroyed. The barn was owned by John Cronin of Lawrence, and had been constructed five years ago on the site of a barn which also was destroyed by fire.

Raytheon Develops New Device To Track Satellites

A new top-hat shaped device that gives instantaneous and continuous data on satellite tumbling — previously unavailable tracking information — was unveiled this week by Raytheon Company.

This data is essential for design of systems to counteract tumbling, an aspect of space travel that could spell tragedy for astronauts. In manned space vehicles and capsules, for example, this violent punishment would cause blackout, sickness and consequent loss of control.

In communications satellites, prevention of tumbling is desirable to keep antennas pointed earthward for reliable and unbroken transmission of signals.

The newly developed portable instrument was demonstrated for tracking station chiefs of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory's world-wide satellite tracking network, gathered for the first week of an annual three-week conference in Jupiter, Fla.

Locking onto the light reflected by Echo I, the electronic-optical unit tracks continuously and records changes in light reflection — the key to accurate measurement of tumbling.

The Raytheon device records plotting information immediately, such as course, bearing, and altitude. This instantly available data complements existing photographic methods which give high accuracy plotting about 45 minutes after satellites are photographed.

has praised the unlimited town meeting as the "essence of Democracy", in speaking to the first School of Affairs of the League of Women Voters.

The firemen's ball will be held at the town house this evening, with a concert from 8-9 and dancing until 1 a.m.

10 Years Ago — November, 1950

Letters are being sent to all telephone subscribers in the town, to determine how they feel about abandoning the toll charges to Lawrence. Unless a majority favor the move, the facilities will not be provided by the company.

Punchard is slightly favored in the annual Thanksgiving Morning tilt with North Andover. The local team has a 7-2 record for the season. Records, however, mean little in this annual contest.

The quota for the Auxiliary Police unit now being formed is almost full. But Sgt. W. R. Hickey, supervising officer, will accept a few more applications.

The water in Haggett's Pond is down 70 inches below high water level, the first time in memory.

A car was found in West Andover Monday, with two dead persons in it. Police said the man, a resident of Lawrence, committed suicide after strangling a woman, also of Lawrence, whose body was found in the trunk.

Phillips Academy will build a one million dollar gymnasium, in memory of the 144 Andover men who lost their lives in World War II. A request from Topsfield school officials that Andover accept 100 students for the junior and senior highs has been turned down. The request included a statement that a 10-year guarantee is needed for the system, and that the pupils may increase to 150.

Satellite tracking radars, unlike the new instrument, require large antennas to transmit and receive signals. Raytheon's satellite tracker has no bulky transmitter. Its receiver is a six-inch mirror. Once its detector locks onto the target, electronic impulses trigger gyro and hydraulic servo units that allow the tracking head to move freely, like a ball in a socket, recording every movement and change in light reflected by the satellite.

A further advantage of optical tracking is that light waves, because of their minute length, permit greater accuracy in pinpointing location than the longer radar waves.

This accuracy, according to Raytheon engineer Wesley Haywood Jr., leader of the team that developed the tracker, may help make recovery of space probes easier. By automatically tracking capsules from the moment of reentry into the earth's atmosphere, these instruments could more accurately predict impact area than present methods using estimated trajectory information.

Haywood bases his estimates on performance and accuracy tests of the tracker at Raytheon's Missile Systems Division Research and Development Center at Bedford, Mass., where it was developed. In tracking Echo I, traveling more than 18,000 miles an hour at nearly 1000 mile altitudes, the instrument has recorded location immediately within a fraction of a mile.

The device can be flown over cloud cover which would otherwise restrict optical tracking. The tracker, recorder, and all electronic and hydraulic equipment necessary for its operation take up less than eight cubic feet of space, or about that taken up by a seat in an airliner.

The new tracker's size makes it ideal for space ship navigation where size and weight limitations restrict use of radar. By training one tracker on the sun and another on a planet, data would be provided to measure distance of the space ship from various planets. This information would also make possible the highly desired "soft landings" of space vehicles by telling pilots when to accelerate or decelerate to prevent damage to ships or equipment.

An advantage for military applications is in the design of the tracker as a passive device — it emits no beam from which the enemy might trace its location.

Vale Littlest Listeners

Thanksgiving Day the library and branch library will be closed, so Friday, the following day, the Littlest Listeners at Ballardvale will have their usual story hour, from 10 to 10:45 a.m. The room will be open 2-5 and on that day. No books are due on holiday.

Great Books

The next reading for the Great Books Discussion, to be held at the library Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 8 o'clock, is to be Thomas Kempis' "Imitation of Christ." Those who have "Consolations of Philosophy" will find it interesting. Again, the group extends a welcome to newcomers; the readings are independent, discussion is based on the words of the "great book" itself without any reference to the effect which the writing has on the importance of the author, or the circumstances which caused the book to be written. Everyone is welcome. Tuesday evening the group meets at the Memorial Hall Library, except during the summer months.

Magazines Available

Library patrons usually find a well-known, popular magazine in their libraries, but few of them realize the extent of the number of periodicals which the modern library offers. Andover readers have come to expect special or unusual publications, in addition to the homemaking, gardening, current events. A few of the well known magazines have been featured at the library this week among them Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; Arizona Highways; Barron's National Business and Financial Weekly; Bulletin of Atomic Scientists; Chicago Times; Ciba Review; Consumers Bulletin and Consumers Reports; Editor and Publisher; Electronics; Forbes Magazine; Harvard Business Review; High Fidelity; Horizon; Illustrated London News; Industrial Development; Macmillan; Modern Plastics; Modern Labor Review; New Yorker; News; The Reporter; School Management; School Arts; Science Digest; Science News Letter; Survey; Spinning Wheel; Survey of Current Business; Theater Arts; United Nations Review; U.S. State Bulletin; Vital Speeches; Workbench; The Writer; Yale Magazine; Yale Review and Yale.

Some of these listed are available for reference for varying number of years; some remain on file for a year or two a few are available for current year only. The library allows magazines to circulate to readers after their issue. Many of interest to businessmen are filed in the reference room and may be used there. For those who need to read an article published in a magazine, the "Readers Guide to Periodical Literature", a reference tool of great value, is suggested. This is shelved near the catalog, in the main reading room.

These Americans

A newly added book "The Eclipse of Community" by Stein, has awakened interest in the study made of the pattern of life of the American people over the years. The new book attempts to interpret these studies, and examines some of the classic community studies such as those of the Lynds in Middletown, Indiana; Robert Park's Chicago study; Lloyd Warner's Newbury Park survey. Having formulated a theory from this examination, he applies it to specific types of communities such as slums, Bohemias, military communities of World War II, Maurice Stein, the author, is assistant professor of sociology at Brandeis University. He hopes his book, in preparation for several years, will help develop a pattern for community studies.

Other books which come to mind after reading "The Eclipse of Community" are Arthur Vidler's "Small Town in Mass. Society" and "Upper New York state town"; and Class in A Southern Town; and John Dollard's "How America Lives" by J. C. Furnas. This last named was a study by the Library Home Journal staff in 1941, and simple reporting of the everyday things that concerned Americans at that time. Somewhat different in intention is David Reisman's "Individualism Reconsidered", a collection of thirty essays which Oscar Handlin classified as a challenging explanation of the American character.

A reader who allows his interest to expand and to experiment following up provocative findings in studies such as these is opening avenues of reading that will prove of lasting value.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL — one of the four teams in completed its first season. George Milne, Herb Harris, Helmer, and Keith Brons.

Forestry Division Is Contemplated

Creation of a forestry division within the department of works is contemplated by Manager Thomas E. Duff. At the moment, wage and consultants are studying the needed division, along with municipal departments, to establish pay scales for its employees.

Mr. Duff said the forestry division, while within the framework of public works, have charge of trees and forested areas owned by the town. There would be no extra hired for the division, beyond working for the tree department.

The change would, in effect, divide the duties of the forestry division and give it added responsibility for work in that field. Although it would be under the over-all supervision of the superintendent, Duff said the man in charge of the division should be given responsibility for that field, in cooperation with other departments.

The facilities of the forestry division would still be used for public works department needed, such as in snow and snow removal, Duff explained. He said there are no immediate plans to place care and maintenance of parks or playgrounds under the new division.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. William and their sons, Geoffrey and Christopher, formerly of III, are spending a few weeks at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chadwick of Lowell. Rogers is connected with Arthur D. Little Co. at the quarters in Cambridge. They will soon move to their new purchased home in Carls.

NEW STILLING BASIN - Water Supt. Donald Bassett inspects the town's stilling basin one of the protections the town insisted upon before Route 495 construction began in Andover. The state constructed the device, which controls the flow of water from the background. Baffle boards can be lowered on the inlet, as the water level rises, having the effect of damming up the water, allowing silt to settle before it reaches Hoggett's Pond. Heavy rains, the town fears, might wash a lot of the earth into the watershed, and directly into the pond. Construction of device shown here will prevent this from happening.

of The Heifer Project Inc., an interfaith relief and rehabilitation group which aids agricultural development in needy nations.

The cargo plane carried 49 Jersey heifers and bulls, nine Nubian goats, eight New Zealand rabbits, eight mallard black ducks and some hand farm tools. As a "cowboy" on this trip, Mr. Hebard rode in a bucket seat between bales of hay, bags of grain, and cans of water, and helped tend the animals. Some of the shipment went to the Greek government, and under the direction of the Ministry of Agriculture, the calves will be used in the experimental and breeding stations.

Some of the calves, the goats and rabbits were consigned to the Congregational Christian Service Committee for Donnista, a remote region in the mountains of central Greece. The remainder of the shipment went to an area of northwestern Greece which centers in Ioannina, where the World Council of Churches has a team of young men and women bringing direct aid in the form of agricultural and domestic instruction. These young people, coming from many western nations and some from far-eastern countries, are living examples of Christian love.

Having traveled extensively through the countryside, Mr. Hebard has some very unusual pictures of Greece, and this illustrated talk promises to be a highlight of the Men's Club season. The meeting will be held at South Church, Wednesday evening, Nov. 30. Supper will be served at 6:45 p.m.

Elbert C. Weaver is president of the South Church Men's Club. He is a member of the faculty at Phillips Academy.

SCOUTS ON TRIP

Thirteen members of Scout Troop 77, of West Church, under the direction of Leader Robert Hooson, enjoyed an outing at Deer Jump Reservation off River rd., West Andover, last Saturday and Sunday. Sunday morning Mr. Hooson conducted a devotional service. The group returned early Sunday afternoon.

Camp Fire Leaders Were Installed

In traditional candlelight services Tuesday, adult leaders of the Camp Fire Girls were installed.

They were presented with pins to signify their leadership, based on the theme "They thought enough to serve - Girls care enough to deserve - Could you?"

An important part of the Camp Fire Girls law has been "give service", and this has been an official slogan of the organization since 1924. Even before then, in 1912, such service as "street cleaning" was listed under the Camp Fire Girls "patriotism" honors.

Among those installed were Mrs. George Cox Jr., leader and Mrs. Frederick Shorten, assistant, Shawsheen; Mrs. George Hayes, leader and Mrs. Alfred Boeglin, assistant, No. Andover; Mrs. Norman Humphries, leader, and Mrs. Charles O'Rourke, Central School; Mrs. Frank Orlando, leader, Mrs. John Fairburn and Mrs. Frank Poland, South School; Mrs. Chester Wilson, leader and Mrs. William Banton, Kittredge School; Mrs. Gerald Nelson, assistant, Shawsheen; Mrs. William Beaulieu, leader, and Mrs. Webster Woodworth, Shawsheen; Mrs. Raymond Durham, leader, Mrs. Raymond Guay, leader, and Mrs. Jean Zahoruko, assistant, and Mrs. Robert Haefling, leader, all of Shawsheen; Mrs. D. Louis Consoli, assistant, South School and Mrs. Harold Evans, leader, Shawsheen.

Mrs. Charles McCarthy of Longmeadow and Mrs. Fred Steeves of Wellesley visited during the weekend with Mrs. Arthur Read of Rolling Ridge rd.
